WELCOME TO METRO.US!

LENYON WHITAKER, MULTIMEDIA EDITOR

Happy Monday! It might be your least favorite day of the week, but today is an exception. For the first time in 38 years, we will get to experience a total solar eclipse. Many people in this region won't get to see the full effect, but there will be several live streams of the eclipse happening online. Find out how to watch at metro.us/news.

COMIC ICON AND ACTOR JERRY LEWIS DIES AT 91

Jerry Lewis, the high prince of low-brow comedy on stage and in movies as well as a fund-raising powerhouse with his annual Labor Day telethon, died on Sunday of "natural causes" at the age of 91, his family said. "Famed comedian, actor and legendary entertainer Jerry Lewis passed away peacefully today of natural causes at 91 at his home in Las Vegas with his family by his side," a statement from the Lewis family said. He starred in more than 45 films in a career spanning five decades. His cross-eyed antics often drew scorn from critics but he was for a time a box-office hit who commanded one of the biggest salaries in Hollywood.

SPAIN ATTACK SUSPECT MAY BE IN FRANCE

2 Spanish police hunting for a suspect after the Barcelona van attack that killed 13 people said on Sunday they could not rule out that he had slipped over the border into France. Spanish police said security operations were under way in Catalonia and on the French border as they try to find Moroccan-born Younes Abouy-aqoub, 22, who they believe to be the only one of 12 suspects still at large. Others have been arrested, shot by police or killed in an explosion at a house in Catalonia a day before Thursday's van attack on Las Ramblas, Barcelona's most famous boulevard. "We don't have any specific information on this but it cannot be ruled out," Catalan police chief Josep Lluís Trapero told a news conference in Barcelona when asked if Abouy-aqoub could have crossed into France.

TRUMP HAS STRATEGY ON AFGHANISTAN

4 President Donald Trump has made a decision on the United States' strategy for Afghanistan after a "sufficiently rigorous" review process, Defense Secretary Jim Mattis said on Sunday. However, Mattis did not provide details on when the White House would make an announcement or what the decision was on Afghanistan, where fighting still rages more than 15 years after U.S. forces invaded and overthrew a Taliban government. Soon after taking office in January, the Trump administration began a review of U.S. policy on Afghanistan, which has expanded into a broader South Asia review. "I am very comfortable that the strategic process was sufficiently rigorous and did not go in with a pre-set position," Mattis told reporters traveling with him aboard a military aircraft to Jordan.

US INDIANAPOLIS FOUND 18K FEET DEEP IN PACIFIC

5 Researchers have found the wreckage of the U.S. warship Indianapolis, which was sunk by a Japanese torpedo in the final days of World War II, more than 18,000 feet below the surface of the Pacific Ocean, the Navy said. The cruiser was returning from its mission to deliver components for the atomic bomb that would soon be dropped on the Japanese city of Hiroshima when it was fired upon in the North Pacific Ocean by a Japanese submarine on July 30, 1945. It sunk in 12 minutes, according to the Naval History and Heritage Command in Washington. No distress signal was sent. About 800 of the 1,196 crew members aboard survived the sinking, but only 316 were rescued alive five days later, with the rest lost to exposure, dehydration, drowning and sharks.

Solar eclipse: Smithsonian astronomer explains why it's cool

Kathy Reeves from the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics talks about the upcoming solar eclipse.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

Are you excited about today's solar eclipse? Though not quite a once-in-a-lifetime event, the phenomenon is special. Kathy Reeves, an astronomer at the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics who is involved with the operation of NASA telescopes, took some time to talk to Metro about the event before she headed to Oregon to get a better view of the total eclipse.

What makes this eclipse so special?

This is the first ellipse to cross the U.S. since 1918. There have been eclipses in the U.S. since then, but this is the first one that goes coast to coast since 1918, and that's pretty cool. It means a lot of people are going to be able to see the totality, the part where the moon completely covers the sun.

How is this different from other eclipses?

Total eclipses happen every couple of years or so, but the location is really the interesting part of this eclipse. The last eclipse that happened in the continental U.S. happened in 1979 (there was one in Hawaii in 1991). It only went over Oregon and Washington in the northern part of the Pacific Northwest. It was similar, but it covered a smaller part of the U.S., so fewer people would have had access to that.

Where are the best locations to view the eclipse?

This one goes from Oregon to South Carolina, for what we call the "passive totality," where you'll get total darkness. Nashville, Tennessee is in its path, St. Louis is almost in the path, Portland, Oregon is almost in path, Kansas City — there are several big cities in or really close to the path of the total eclipse. The other cool thing about this eclipse is that everybody in the continental U.S. will be able to see at least a partial eclipse.

What do you experience during a total eclipse?

It gets dark and it's not quite the same as when it gets dark at night. There's still little bit of light coming from the sun, the outer layer called the corona. The light has this very strange twilight kind of quality, and it does get a little cooler [in temperature]. Depending on where you are, there might be changes with the birds. We were in Australia for the last one and we noticed the birds stopped chirping.

Can you take pictures of the eclipse?

Yes, absolutely. For the partial eclipse, you need a filter so you aren't pointing your camera directly at the sun, because it's still very bright and you can't look at it directly. During the total eclipse, you can totally take pictures of the corona. There's a project out of University of California at Berkeley where they're trying to gather everybody's photos from this eclipse to put them all together into a movie. It's called the Eclipse Megamovie Project.

A solar eclipse will hit on Monday. GETTY IMAGES

Do scientists do any experiments during an eclipse?

There are actually lot of different experiments going on with the eclipse. Our group is working on a telescope that's going to fly on an airplane during the eclipse, along the eclipse path. It's going to get up to 50,000 feet above the atmosphere and look at sun and the infrared [light]. That's affected a lot by the magnetic field of the sun, which is scientifically important. A problem with the part of the infrared spectrum we're looking at is a lot of it gets absorbed by the atmosphere, it doesn't make its way to the ground. That's why we're putting a telescope on an airplane, so we see more of the sun and less of the atmosphere.

Why is it worth it to see an eclipse?

It's just a beautiful natural event. Pictures don't do it justice. Having the whole experience is really exciting — seeing it and feeling it and hearing it and being in a group of people all excited about it as it's happening is really cool. As soon as you see a total eclipse, you think to yourself, "Wow, I gotta do that again."

For more, see page 15.

How to watch a live stream of the 2017 solar eclipse

You'll be able to watch a live stream of the 2017 solar eclipse and all of its splendor in multiple ways and in HD.

Stargazers located in the "path of totality" — the path that the moon's shadow follows on Earth — will be treated to a total solar eclipse beginning at 9:04 a.m. PDT in Oregon. NASA has provided a total solar eclipse interactive map showing the eclipse's path and best places to view it.

If you didn't make travel plans to visit areas along the "path of totality," you can always fire up your computer or mobile device and see all the magic via live stream.

2017 solar eclipse live stream on Slooh
Beginning at 11:30 a.m.

There are choices for people who cannot view the eclipse in person. GETTY IMAGES

EDT, Slooh will begin their live coverage of the 2017 solar eclipse. According to their website, they will have astronomers on the ground in Stanley, Idaho, and a "team of feed partners" showing the exact moment the Sun is engulfed in darkness. Slooh has also partnered with Univision to provide the coverage in Spanish. During the event, viewers can ask questions to a panel of Slooh astronomers by tagging @Slooh on Twitter. Event details for Slooh's live coverage of the solar eclipse can be found on their main page for the event.

2017 solar eclipse live stream on NASA
NASA's live coverage will run from 12 p.m. to 4 p.m. and will let viewers see the activities in 12 locations using airplanes, ground telescopes and 57 high altitude balloons. Their live stream of the 2017 solar eclipse will be on their main event page as well as Facebook Live, YouTube, Twitter/Periscope, Twitch TV, Ustream and NASA mobile apps. You have plenty of options.

2017 solar eclipse live stream on CNN
Beginning at 1 p.m. CNN will live stream the 2017 solar eclipse with multiple 4K, 360-degree cameras that will be set up along the eclipse path, giving viewers the chance to see the eclipse from virtually all angles. The live stream video will be on CNN's Facebook page via Facebook Live 360.

HOW TO PROTECT YOUR EYES

Here's how to watch the eclipse without harming your vision

It's sure to be an awe-inspiring sight, but looking directly at an eclipse could actually damage your eyesight, according to NASA.

It's safe to look at the total solar eclipse — or the moment when the moon completely passes in front of the sun.

"As the moon moves in front of the sun, there comes a time when several bright points of light shine around the moon's edges," NASA advises on its website.

The beads disappear until there's only a bright spot that looks "like a giant diamond ring," according to NASA. "It is still not safe to look at the sun at this point! Only when that bright spot completely disappears can you safely look at the sun."

This period is short, so be sure to keep your eye on the moon as it moves. Put your glasses back on when that happens, or use an indirect method to watch, like by looking at nearby trees.

Viewing glasses are safe if they're made in the United States by Rainbow Symphony, Thousand Oaks, TSE or American Paper Optics, according to NASA.

TOTAL ECLIPSE OF DONALD'S DECENCY

ANALYSIS

@henican

Spicer before him, Bannon was ushered back to civilian life at the end of what was described as the "worst week yet" for the Trump presidency.

Then again, it would be hard to find a recent week that wasn't. It does make you shudder at the obvious follow-ups: What is coming and who is going by this Friday? What exactly could be worse than this?

Aid and comfort to white supremacists. Confederate War statues treated like an oppressed minority group. Steve Bannon, out as Donald Trump's senior adviser and back in his bunker at Breitbart.com, chortling to his locked-and-loaded comrades on the right: "I've got my hands back on my weapons. ... We're about to rev that machine up. And rev it up we will."

Maybe we should all start saying our prayers. God, if you are listening, send us a sign.

Turn the daylight into darkness, if only for a minute or two.

If politics can't save us, perhaps the Almighty can. Lately, we've been suffering through a total eclipse of decency.

It was another Farewell Friday at the White House as the uber-nationalist Bannon was shown the door. What made Bannon so dangerous was that, unlike his boss, the president, he actually had a guiding ideology. His anti-immigrant, anti-trade, anti-alliance worldview was a matter, not just of political expediency, but of deeply held belief. Now, like Chief of Staff Reince Priebus and Press Secretary Sean

Fifty years ago, a much more innocent America celebrated the Summer of Love. Now, 2017 is going down as the Summer of neo-Nazis, Klansmen and Some Very Nice People Who Just Happen to be Marching Along and Didn't Hear the Angry Chants of "Jews Will Not Replace Us."

Clearly, all of this is causing deep distress for some Republicans, who don't want the slogan of their party to be "The South Shall Rise Again."

This week, Republican Sens. Jeff Flake, Tim Scott and Bob Corker joined John McCain and Lindsey Graham in the GOP's small but growing I'm Not So Sure About Trump Caucus. And if others happen to cast their eyes skyward at just the right moment this afternoon, who knows? The ranks of that caucus could swell again.

Author Patty Farmer releases second book on Plaza's star-studded history

"Starring the Plaza" centers on the hotel's place in entertainment history, from Hollywood to Broadway and the stars who flocked and filmed there.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@MetroNewYork
nikki.mascali@metro.us

The Plaza Hotel has enchanted millions across the globe since it opened in 1907, and among them is author Patty Farmer, who first visited the luxury hotel at age 7.

She envisioned herself to be like Eloise, from the children's book series about a girl who lived on the hotel's "tippy-top floor." Eventually, Farmer followed in Eloise's footsteps and became a Plaza resident herself 10 years ago.

Her love of the Plaza inspired two books, the second of which was released today. "Starring the Plaza" comes four years after "The Persian Room Presents," an oral history on the hotel's nightclub, which was open from 1934 to 1975.

"Starring the Plaza" centers on the hotel's place in entertainment history, from Hollywood to Broadway — and especially the stars who flocked and filmed there, like Cary Grant, Alfred Hitchcock, The Beatles and countless others.

What do you remember most about your first visit to the Plaza?

It was just magical. Plus, Eloise was born there, so I think that helped. When you're a child, you're like, "Can I talk to her?" [Laughs]

I think I learned most of my etiquette visiting there with my mother and having her tell me to 'put on your Sunday manners.' And things haven't changed. I was having tea in the Palm Court [recently] and saw a bunch of little girls with their mothers or grandmothers, and it was the same scene. It's timeless.

What was it like walking into your very own Plaza apartment for the first time?

It was like I wasn't even living my own life. Just wow.

Did you approach this book differently than "The Persian Room Presents"?

This one is primarily a photo album, although there is a lot of narrative in there. The photos tell the story with me narrating slightly.

You said you "scoured the archives" for "Star- ring the Plaza." What was most surprising thing you uncovered?

That it went back so far, and we came up with enough to do a Volume 2, which I may do sometime. That kind of surprised me.

What's next for you?

I'm still fascinated with the Plaza, and after "The Persian Room Presents" came out, I was contacted by so many stars and their agents [that weren't included], so I may even do a "Persian Room" revised.

In addition to "Starring the Plaza," Farmer will also release "Playboy Laughs: The Comedy, Comedians and Cartoons of Playboy" on Aug. 31. Both are available on Amazon.com.

Cary Grant stands outside the Plaza in this scene from 1959's "North by Northwest," which was directed by Alfred Hitchcock. PROVIDED

Confederate statues may not be as historic as you think

A study of the years during which the monuments were created shows spikes during eras of extreme racial divide.

letters@metro.us

While President Donald Trump has lamented the loss of the so-called "beautiful statues" paying homage to the Confederacy, it turns out that the monuments aren't as old as they may appear. A Southern Poverty Law Center report revisited Sunday morning by NPR raised questions over the intent behind the creation of the statues and who they're really meant to honor.

The timeline goes like this: Rather than being erected in the wake of the Civil War, most of the monuments went up during times of heightened racial tension, segregation and deprivation of civil rights. The start of the 1900s, around the time the NAACP was founded, saw by far the most new statues while another spike in building was seen from the 1950s into the '60s, especially regarding the naming of schools, according to the SPLC report.

"These statues were meant to create legitimate garb for white supremacy," said Jane Grossman of the American Historical Association, speaking to NPR. "Why would you put a statue of Robert E. Lee or Stonewall Jackson in 1948 in Baltimore?"

The monuments have come under fire after a handful of states have begun to reconsider whether to keep the symbols representing America's slaveholding past. While the president has argued against the removal of statues around the country, the numbers don't lie. The SPLC's report revealed that, more likely than being tributes to history, the monuments served to further divide the country during contentious times, functioning as a reclamation of white power.

Confederate monuments may have been built more recently than people realize. WIKIMEDIA COMMONS

ALL IN

All those patently false statements President Trump has made about — well, all kinds of things? Forget them. The vicious and at times violent words he heaves at his foes? Never mind. His explicitly distasteful statements about women, his disdain for members of his own party, the chaos in the White House, the Russian questions, his still hidden tax returns and his growing list of legislative setbacks? Who cares?

His die-hard supporters are apparently not the least bit concerned. Indeed, in a new Monmouth University poll, six in 10 people who approve of how Trump is doing his job say they can't imagine anything that would change their minds. Let that sink in: They can't imagine anything that would change their minds.

When he bragged during the election "I could stand in the middle of Fifth Avenue and shoot somebody, and I wouldn't lose voters," I thought it was hyperbole. But now it sounds like, at least with a slice of his base, he was absolutely right. And yet I admit, I find the kind of loyalty expressed in that poll baffling.

Because political history is overflowing with tales of failure, scandal and betrayals from which no party has ever been immune. Great leaders have descended into cauldrons of ignominy, just as weak "also rans" have risen to acclaim. Sure, I know some people have natural faith in God. Some people never doubt for a moment the love of their families. Some have unending trust in their dogs or a heartfelt belief the Phillies are about to bounce back.

I understand that. People can have deep-seated, personal history with those kinds of subjects, experiences on which to base their trust. And I'm not saying the president's supporters are in any way wrong to stand by their man. It's a free, democratic country. They have every right. But I find it strange when people expressly say they highly doubt they will ever change their opinions when circumstances can change so easily.

Of course, that poll found that roughly the same number of those who disapprove of Trump's performance also can't imagine changing their minds. And that's a whole other point of view worth pondering.

POLITICS

Leading Democrat: Critics can't conclude Trump is impaired

Adam Schiff, the top Democrat on the House Intelligence Committee, said on Sunday that it was premature to try to remove President Donald Trump by claiming he is physically or mentally impaired.

Schiff told Jake Tapper on CNN's "State of the Union" program that it did not make sense for Trump's opponents to focus on the 25th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which two Democratic lawmakers invoked against the president after his controversial comments about a white nationalist rally in Virginia.

Under the 25th Amendment, the vice president takes over as acting president if he and a majority of either Cabinet officials or "such other body as Congress may by law provide" declare in writing that the president "is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office."

"I think we're still far from concluding that that's the case," Schiff said, "even though we find, many of us, his conduct anathema and there to be a serious problem here."

The White House did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

California Rep. Zoe Lofgren on Friday introduced a resolution urging Vice President Mike Pence and Trump's Cabinet to have medical and psychiatric professionals examine the president to help determine whether he can do his job.

"Many Americans, including many Republicans, have observed the president's increasingly disturbing pattern of actions and public statements that suggest he may be mentally unfit to execute the duties required of him," Lofgren said in a statement.

Rep. Jackie Speier, also of California, said in a Twitter post on Tuesday that Trump was "showing signs of erratic behavior and mental instability that place the country in grave danger. Time to invoke the 25th Amendment."

Artist Marshall Arisman reflects on journey from dark to light

"All I think I'm doing is re-creating my childhood. When I look back, the guns and the mysticism, it's all rooted in that."

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@MetroNewYork
nikki.mascali@metro.us

Artist Marshall Arisman grew up in upstate New York "surrounded by deer and deer hunters" and spending every Sunday with his medium grandmother and muse "Muddy" in Lily Dale, a haven for spiritualists and mystics. "Learn to stand in the space between angels and demons," Muddy said, and that dichotomy went on to inform a 45-year career in which Arisman walked a fine line between good and evil and light and dark.

As part of "An Artist's Journey From Dark to Light, 1972-2017," at the SVA Chelsea Gallery through Sept. 16, visitors will get to see Arisman's angels and demons oil painting series, editorial illustrations like his Adolf Hitler cover for U.S. News & World Report in 1989, short films and more.

The multimedia retrospective seems very poignant with Donald Trump's presidency, but the timing wasn't intentional, said Arisman, who has been at SVA for 52 years and is chair of the Illustration as Visual Essay graduate program that he started in 1984.

"I did a series on guns in 1972 that is not out-of-date. I did a series on the atomic bomb in 1980 that's not out-of-date. It's sad that things are worse — and we're on the brink of something not very good," he said during an interview with Metro at his Chelsea studio.

Despite his penchant for darkness, Trump has not inspired any of Arisman's recent work.

"It's too big, it's too crazy," he said. "I can't sum it up in pictures. There's not enough canvas. I'm overwhelmed by it, and none of us can nail it down. There's a lead weight on us, it's heavy, and people are getting exhausted by it."

... his process

"When I started painting, I bought brushes and stretch canvases, and I found that I become so self-conscious of my brushstrokes that nothing was happening naturally. It became more and more style-driven, so I stopped working on stretch canvas, threw away all my brushes, and I only paint with my hands. I liked the idea that my grandmother was right — if my hands are on this, whatever is coming out of me is going in there.

"Much of this is getting rid of my ego; my ego cannot paint. I keep thinking it can, and it can't. [Laughs] Every time I say, 'I'm going to do a good painting today,' I do a terrible painting. Every time I say, 'You're no good, you can't paint,' I do a good painting. It's the same lesson I keep learning every day."

Why Knee Arthritis Sufferers Of Almost All Ages Are New York Doc's Merge Best of High Tec

Fraction of the cost, minimal risk and Hundreds of arthritis sufferers from tri-state area calling weekly

By Matt Edgar

America's Health Writer

New York City - Everyone has said it at one time or another. If I had only known about "this" sooner - things would be very different today.

That's what many knee arthritis pain sufferers are saying about this technology and treatment.

"We all know that countless lives are being saved every year because of early detection and better treatment" noted the clinic director at the NY Pain MD in New York City. "The same holds true for treating arthritis pain. I believe we are having so much success at NY Pain MD because of two factors: One is we are using advanced medical technology and treatments many clinics do not use. And second, the word has spread to our community and so many knee arthritis sufferers are coming in sooner. And the earlier we can treat knee arthritis - the better the results. The key to trying to avoid knee replacement surgery is doing the correct treatment as soon as possible"

What is the "correct treatment?"

"That depends," said the director. "There is no one answer when it comes to medical conditions. Knee arthritis is no different. That's why, if you have knee pain, you should have it evaluated by a doctor who deals with and treats knee pain every day," added the director.

For many knee arthritis pain sufferers the right treatment is Viscosupplementation whereby a preparation of Hyaluronic acid a gel-like FDA approved medicine is applied directly into the knee joint using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology.

Hyaluronic acid is the natural lubricant and shock absorber of your joints and is found to be decreased in arthritis sufferers. This is similar to running your car without oil. Obviously, the sooner you put oil back in the car - the less damage will be done. That's why some doctors feel early viscosupplementation gets the best results and is so important for avoiding surgery.

The director believes one of the most important factors for the success of viscosupplementation is making sure you are getting it into the joint space precisely. That's why the doctors at NY Pain MD use advanced imaging technology to apply Precision Arthritis Targeting during every treatment.

A device called the "C-Arm" allows the doctor to see into the joint and actually watch the medicine be applied exactly where it is supposed to. Research shows that performing procedures without Precision Arthritis Targeting (P.A.T.T.) can result in missing the joint space as much as 30% of the time. If you had viscosupplementation treatments without Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology and did not get good results - this may be why.

Can This Be Avoided? Total knee replacement is serious surgery requiring months of rehabilitation. Some doctors think modern treatments done early enough can keep baby boomers from going under the knife.

Normal Pain-Free Knee Joint

Everyone Wants Proof:

In the artist simulated drawings, picture #1 is a normal, pain-free knee. There is no arthritis and the knee can move and bend freely without pain.

Knee With Painful Arthritis

Pain -

Illustration shown is a knee joint with painful osteoarthritis. Arthritis causes the joint space to decrease, grinding, stiffness, decreased motion, bone spurs, swelling and a lot of pain.

Research Shows Doctors Miss The Joint Space Up To 30% Of The Time Without Advanced Imaging

Failed Treatment -

The injection (Lubrication medicine) misses the joint space. Research shows this occurs up to 30% of the time without the use of the digital imaging to guide the injection. This is why lubrication medicine may not have worked for you

Lubrication Medicine Injected Directly Into Knee Joint Like "Joint Oil" using Precision Targeting Technology

Successful Treatment -

Choosing Newest Medical Procedures Before Surgery h Medicine And All Natural Treatments

little to no downtime amongst top reasons.

to find out if treatment is right for them...Often covered by insurance.

If you qualify for this treatment, it might be one of the happiest days of your life.

That's because, for the 2 ½ years thousands of knee pain sufferers have flocked to the NY Pain MD New York City

That's when their specially trained-doctors added cutting-edge arthritis treatments to their already successful comprehensive knee pain relief program.

Viscosupplementation is unique because - even though it is manufactured by a pharmaceutical company, it is NOT considered a drug because it is a natural substance with an incredible story.

Why So Many Want It

You see, when you suffer with arthritis - the lubricating fluid (synovial fluid) in your knee joint dries up.

This means instead of gliding smoothly - your bones start to rub and grind against each other.

This causes a little pain in the beginning - but over time the pain steadily gets worse until it is excruciating.

Like "Joint Oil"

Viscosupplementation works so well because it is like "joint oil." It is a natural substance that contains one of the natural building blocks of the synovial fluid that lubricates your knee.

Scientists and researchers discovered this natural building block to synovial fluid in the rooster's comb - that big red thing on top of the roosters head. It is extracted from the roosters comb, purified and concentrated. They have also developed medical lubricants that are also natural but made a bit like yogurt and "cultured" into highly effective arthritis pain-fighting medical lubricants.

When introduced directly into your knee joint, it is like squirting oil on a rusty door hinge.

Viscosupplementation allows your joints to glide more smoothly eliminating a lot of the rubbing, grinding and pain.

Can Supplements Do The Same Thing?

No. Glucosamine and chondroitin and other supplements are much different. You can only get this from a doctor and it often helps knee pain sufferers who got limited or no success from glucosamine and chondroitin. Beware of unsubstantiated claims made by supplements to do what this advanced medical procedure does.

Why You Should Try This Even If You've Already Had Similar Treatments Without Results...

"We have been able to help so many knee pain sufferers even many who have already tried other treatments like Synvisc, Supartz, Orthovisc and even Hyalgan. This is because our treating doctors always use "Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology". This allows us to place the Viscosupplementation exactly where it needs to be. Studies show doctors doing joint injections without Technology can miss the joint up to 30% of the time." noted the Director of Center

NY Pain MD is a state of the art medical facility offering the best technology.

Advanced Medical Technology Can Make All The Difference: This advanced Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology using fluoroscopic imaging allows doctors to see directly into the knee joint so treatments are precise and the FDA approved lubricating medicine actually goes EXACTLY where it is supposed to. Studies show that procedures done without this technology can miss the joint up to 30% of the time. This is one reason Viscosupplementation may not have worked for you in the past. NY Pain MD uses this P.A.T. Imaging Technology. with each and every treatment.

And that's not all :

"Every case is individual. Some patients get quite a bit of relief right away - others take a little more time. But most have been extremely happy. We've noted results lasting no less than 6 months for many but up to 2 years for some patients.. Patients who were suffering for years with bad knee pain are getting their lives back... going for walks again and exercising. It's amazing to see. They tell all their friends - that's why we are swarmed. After getting treatment and feeling better, many patients have decided to cancel their total knee replacement surgeries." added the director.

How To Find Out If It Can Help You?

If you have knee pain, the NY Pain MD doctors would like to invite you for a no-obligation screening to see if you are a candidate for their treatments using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology.

These celebrity couples met on set

Ah, celebrity couples. We do dish so much about them here. Sometimes, they're goals AF. Other times it's like, oh yeah, you guys exist? That's chill.

But then again, celebrities are just like us. Sometimes they meet someone on the job — it's just not by the watercooler, it's in front of the cameras. And then they get together. And then, sometimes, they stay together. It's kind of wild, you know?

We collected 15 couples that met on set — from Channing Tatum and Jenna Dewan Tatum to Eva Mendes and Ryan Gosling. Head over to Metro.us/entertainment to see them all.

The coupiest of on-set couples.

Robin Thicke knocked up his GF

Over the weekend, Robin Thicke's girlfriend, a 22-year-old named April Love Geary, announced that she's got a gut full of the 40-year-old's baby. Cool, I guess!

Geary announced the news on Instagram, as you do. With a sonogram, of course. "Robin and I are very excited to share with you all that we're having a baby! The due date is March 1st, Alan's birthday!"

Aw.

She also shared a picture of her three-month bump — which, for what it's worth, looks a lot like me after I have a burrito.

The pair has been dating since 2014. Thicke already has a kid, Julian, with his ex-wife Paula Patton. They are like, still in the midst of a nasty custody battle.

But congratulations to Thicke — a man who dressed up as Beetlejuice and let Miley Cyrus twerk on him that one time — on your baby and your hot young thing, bb!

Hooray, I guess?

Is this why Elon and Amber broke up?

Amber Heard and Elon Musk called it quits a few weeks ago, citing busy schedules.

Now Star — I know, so take it with several grains of salt — is reporting that the reason behind their breakup may or may not be much more sinister. Sources tell the magazine that it was "close encounters of the come-hither kind that sealed her fate," whatever that means.

According to the mag, "friends did try to warn Musk that Johnny Depp's ex-wife was a golddigger dressed in hand-me-downs. 'Elon had to learn that the hard way,' says the pal. 'He couldn't see it at first, but Amber was just using him.'"

Listen. Maybe Amber is attracted to rich men, but Elon is sure attracted to beautiful, young women who ruin seminal films like "Magic Mike." We call this a "mutually beneficial" relationship.

Anyway, these two drama queens were already spotted having breakfast together, after announcing their breakup, so who even knows. Could be tomfoolery. But it looks like they're both just a mess.

Ugh, these two again.

Elisabeth Moss defends Scientology

Elisabeth Moss, star of "The Handmaid's Tale," is a Scientologist. She rarely talks about it — but recently she defended her religion of choice via Instagram. Mmkay!

A user who chose the moniker moelybanks wrote asking whether or not "The Handmaid's Tale" makes Moss think twice about Scientology. Because, they wrote, "both Gilead and Scientology both believe that all outside sources [aka news] are wrong or evil."

Obviously, though, Moss disagreed.

"That's actually not true at all about Scientology," Moss replied, very politely. "Religious freedom and tolerance and understanding the truth and equal rights for every race, religion and creed are extremely important to me," she wrote, although an "LOL, actually" likely would have sufficed. "The most important things to me probably. And so Gilead and THT hit me on a very personal level."

So polite! Also, such a non-answer. Oh well. We'll always have hot Max Minghella and his portrayal of Nick.

Solar-eclipse watch parties

Approach totality at these watch parties at rooftops, bars and museums in the city.

KATE MOONEY
kate.mooney@metro.us

Today will be different from the standard mediocre slog that starts every working week: An extremely major astronomical phenomenon is happening for the first time in 38 years! The Great American Solar Eclipse, in which the moon passes between the Earth and the sun, blacking out the skies, will occur today from 1:23 p.m. until 4 p.m., with a two-minute peak of total darkness at 2:44 p.m. — although in NYC we're only expected to glimpse 70 percent "totality," so, it'll be more of a browning out, if you will. Speaking of, if you're free during the day and would like to pair this rare cosmological event with booze (or you're just looking for some other options besides watching NASA's live stream on your work computer), here are a handful of eclipse-watch parties at bars, rooftops and museums across the city. Solar-viewing glasses are provided at each so you don't harm your eyes.

Lovage

This Midtown rooftop bar will host a watch party Monday from noon to 5 p.m. Come for the panoramic views of the Empire State Building and the Hudson River; stay for the Solar Eclipse of My Heart cocktail. $12, lovagenyc.com

Hotel Americano

Entry is free at this eclipse party on the rooftop of a swanky Chelsea hotel, or it will cost you $40 to reserve a poolside lounge bed. Enjoy a special cocktail for the occasion: the Solar Eclipse Black Martini, with Grey Goose ($14). Just don't "eclipse" out! Noon-3 p.m., hotel-americano.com.

Bungalow Bar

Make a trip out of it and head to the Rockaways to do your eclipse-gazing oceanside at this waterfront tavern. From noon to 4 p.m., enjoy tunes by DJ Teddy, a Total Solar Eclipse Cocktail, and of course, all the seafood you desire. Post-eclipse, go for a late-afternoon dip. Free, ingoodcompany.com/bungalow.

Brooklyn Grange

The astronomy hang at NYC's preeminent rooftop farm is called "Commune with the Moon" — reason enough to attend. The event opens with a farm tour from 1:30 to 2:30, followed by the main event of eclipse viewing, yoga from 3 to 5 p.m. (BYO

American Museum of Natural History

If you want to be around folks who actually know what they're talking about when it comes to the cosmos, head to the Hayden Planetarium. The event goes from noon to 4 p.m. and includes a 12:30 p.m. talk and Q&A with the museum's astrophysics educator Brian Levine. Eclipse viewing begins at 1:30 at the Rose Center for Earth Space. ## HOW TO GET AHEAD

What to do when your boss is a bully

At the root of bullying behavior is insecurity, says Jones. "It's a power play." istock

It's more common than you think.

If you thought your days of bullying ended on the playground, you're in for a rude awakening.

In fact, "one of the toughest dilemmas facing workers today is office bullying, especially when it's coming from their boss," says career and workplace advisor, Tracey C. Jones.

But that doesn't mean you should simply grin and bear it for the sake of your job. There are plenty of ways to handle the situation without having to hand in a letter of resignation.

We spoke with Jones to find out how:

Clarify the behavior

Before you start pointing fingers, it's important that you ask yourself: Am I actually being bullied, or is my boss just being tough? "There's a big difference," says Jones. "A tough boss is going to give you constructive criticism, but a bullying boss is going to give you destructive criticism."

If your boss scolds you when you turn in low quality work, he's simply pushing you to perform your best, she explains. But if he humiliates you in public, calls you demeaning names when you make a mistake, or attempts to intimidate you by threatening to get rid of you, that's when you've officially entered bullying territory.

"Bullies are prone to public displays of anger," explains the expert.

"They'll attack you on a personal level rather than criticize your work." Once that happens, it's time to put your foot down and do something about it.

Confront the bully

Nobody wants to face the bully head on, says Jones, but it's honestly the best thing you can do.

Plus, "sooner or later you're going to have to be at the same table with the bully." It looks much better if you can tell whoever is involved. "I already spoke with him, we discussed the issues, and here are my notes from our conversation." It makes you look professional, and shows that you made the effort to resolve things, rather than simply sulking or complaining to fellow coworkers, she explains. "It just makes you look so much more credible."

Her method for going about it strategically: Write down what you're going to say ahead of time, and think of a way to make it clear that you're trying to help them. "Use truth and love," says Jones. "Say it in a way that encourages, not decimates them." Try something along the lines of: "There's no doubt that you know how to run this company and I understand that you have a lot on your plate, but at times you speak to me in a way that doesn't help my productivity." At the end of the day, you don't want to attack him as a person; you just want to just resolve the issue.

Go higher up

A bully will respond to your confrontation in one of two ways, says Jones. "He'll either be woefully ignorant, or willfully ignorant." In the first scenario, he's going to apologize, thank you for telling him, and then work on fixing his behavior. "But the willfully ignorant boss is going to be glad that he pushed your buttons and ostracized you," says Jones. "He wants to devalue you and let you know you're not the boss."

If that's the case, it's time to go higher up on the management chain, says the expert. HR should be the first stop, and if that doesn't resolve it, then comes the CEO.

Upper management will say one of two things: "Holy cow I can't believe it — I'm going to take care of it, or what do you want me to do about it?"

If the response is the latter, "that's when you should start polishing up that resume and looking for outside work."

Bradley, pitching lift Sox to rubber-game win over Yankees

Jackie Bradley Jr.'s three RBI was all the Red Sox needed Sunday.

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The Boston Red Sox have opened up their American League East-leading lead to five games as they defeated the second-place New York Yankees, 5-1, on Sunday.

FINAL 8/20
	1
	5

Jackie Bradley Jr.'s three RBI paced the Red Sox while the pitching staff combined to allow just three hits on the afternoon.

Boston took two-of-three at home from the surging Yankees, who were fresh off a four-game sweep of the cross-town rival New York Mets last week.

Bradley opened the scoring for the Red Sox in the second inning with a two-run triple off Gray, who had given up a pair of singles to Xander Bogaerts and Sandy Leon to descend into trouble.

It was a bad omen for Gray, who had received an average of just two runs of support from the Yankees offense since his arrival from Oakland.

He would get just one run of support during his five innings as he labored for 106 pitches but managed to hold the Red Sox to those two early runs.

The Yankees, though,

Jackie Bradley Jr. went 2-for-3 with 3 RBI and a walk on Sunday. GETTY IMAGES couldn't find a way to get to Boston starter Rick Porcello. Brett Gardner provided the Yankees' breakthrough in the top of the fifth inning, driving a solo home run just over the short wall in right field, his 20th of the year to halve New York's deficit.

That was the only blemish of Porcello's day though as he allowed just three hits on the afternoon in six innings of work. It was a return to form for the righty, who entered Sunday's game with a 7-14 record and 4.59 ERA. Those are shocking numbers from a pitcher that won the AL Cy Young Award last season.

Before the Sox could get to their bullpen, the offense provided a bit more insurance in the bottom of the sixth when Bradley delivered a two-out, run-scoring single off Adam Warren for his third RBI of the day.

Warren was replaced by former closer Aroldis Chapman, who was pitching before the eighth inning for the first time since 2012 and in the sixth inning for the first time since 2011. He made simple work of Brock Holt, striking him out on three pitches that clocked in at 98, 99 and 100 miles per hour before getting through the seventh unscathed.

Boston would put the game in the eighth inning when Sandy Leon doubled in a pair of runs off Tommy Kahnle.

It was more than enough as the Yankees couldn't touch the Red Sox bullpen. They were set down by Brandon Workman, Addison Reed and Craig Kimbrel with ease as they were held hitless in the final three innings. Among the final outs, Aaron Judge struck out once again, extending his MLB-record streak to 37-straight games with a punch out.

Manning ready to unleash new-look Giants offense

Big Blue's second preseason game will offer a glimpse at Eli Manning and his new weapons.

KRISTIAN DYER
@KristianRDyer
sports@metro.us

Monday night will be the first time New York Giants quarterback Eli Manning will be able to test run all the weapons in his arsenal.

A star-studded supporting cast will be debuted on Monday night when the Giants face the Cleveland Browns as Manning and several veterans did not feature in their first preseason game, a loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The offseason addition of wide receiver Brandon Marshall via free agency and tight end Evan Engram, a first-round pick out of Ole Miss, gives the Giants what potentially might be one of the most explosive offenses in the league.

They join an already potent group of talent including Manning, twice a Super Bowl MVP, as well as wide receiver Odell Beckham Jr., arguably the best at his position in the entire NFL.

Sprinkle in young talents such as running back Paul Perkins and wide receiver Sterling Shepard and there is a tremendous upside for this group of playmakers.

Monday night will be the initial taste of this team's ceiling as an offense as they integrate several key pieces.

"I think any time you get some live game exposure, you are trying to get on the same page as your receivers. ... Make sure everybody is sound in our communication and we are all on the same page, doing the right things," Manning said. "And for the first time in eight months, it is live. Now I know that these guys can hit me, they can tackle me, they can go at me. So I think that getting used to that, feeling things in the pocket, not looking at the rush, but feeling the rush and buying a little extra time or moving in the pocket and finding a completion."

The potential is there for the Giants offense to be great. So too is the possibility of this collection of talent being one giant headache.

Marshall and Beckham are both used to being the top target for their respective teams, meaning that there may not be enough balls to go around. These are big play receivers, used to putting up big numbers.

In his first three years in the league, Beckham has topped 1,000 receiving yards each season and has earned three trips to the Pro Bowl.

It wasn't that long ago that Marshall was putting up a 1,000-yard season for the Jets in 2015 and is a potential selection for the Pro Football Hall of Fame someday.

That's a lot of talent that will demand the ball. If the Giants are winning, chances are everyone will be happy.

If they struggle, then things could get ugly in the locker room given the personalities involved.

"I haven't thought about it yet, so I think you want to get everybody involved. I think that's good and that's when we'll be at our best, when we have all the guys getting catches, feeling involved in the offense," Manning said. "But you can't get overly concerned with if someone doesn't have a catch, then you have to go out of your way to force a throw to them and that's going to affect the team. I'd like to have everybody have eight catches in a game, all the receivers. It's not going to happen, but you never know. They all have to be ready and they have to get open."

Aries Do whatever it takes to avoid being faced with situations that are unpredictable or too demanding. Aim to add stability to your life and relationships.

Taurus Put any stubborn tendency to rest, or you will end up in an argument. Make practical requests when dealing with difficult individuals.

Gemini Make home and family your priorities. Listen carefully to what children or elders have to say. Clear up any confusion that may have occurred.

Cancer Business trips or events that include your peers will be taxing, but at the same time will show why it's important to participate. What you learn will be helpful.

Leo If something needs to be done, make it happen. Domestic and family unity will give you the strength to carry out whatever changes you deem necessary.

Virgo Secrets will not help you get what you want. An open discussion that leads to a fair solution will keep you in good standing with others and bring good results.

Libra Your participation in events that affect your environment, workplace or health will be gratifying. The physical contribution you offer will make a difference.

Scorpio Have a strategy in place. Don't be afraid to use unorthodox methods to get things done well and on time. Personal physical changes need to be monitored.

Sagittarius Information will be made available to you. Make sure the facts are correct and proceed to make decisions based on the material you receive.

Capricorn Avoid unstable situations and people. Use your intelligence and insight to make the best and safest choice. Contracts are best negotiated and handled personally.

Aquarius An unexpected opportunity will come along if you do things your way. Your innovative approach to work, your health and money or legal matters will pay off.

Pisces Keep demanding people at a distance. Taking care of business and completing what's expected of you should be your priorities. EUGENIA LAST
